

1. Introduction

This Policy aims to ensure that Logic Investments ('Logic') complies with the obligations set out by UK legislation, regulations and rules regarding the use of cookies on the Logic website.

Logic's systems and controls reflect our commitment to observing the requirements of the relevant legislation and regulations:

Cookies are used on the Logic website to distinguish you from other users of our website and to ensure that we give you the best experience when browsing. If you continue without changing your settings, we'll assume that you are happy to receive all cookies on our website.

Some cookies are essential so you can move around the website and use its features. Without these cookies, some services you've asked for cannot be provided. These cookies do not gather information about you that could be used for marketing or remembering where you've been on the internet.

2. What are cookies?

A cookie is a small file of letters and numbers that are downloaded to your computer or mobile device when you visit our website, if you agree. Your browser sends these cookies back to the website every time you visit the site again, so it can recognise you and can then tailor what you see on the screen. The information gathered can include your browser history on our website, specific information you have entered into forms and the time and date of your visit to the website.

Certain cookies can contain personal information, such as where you click 'remember me' when logging in, however, most cookies will not collect information that identifies you and will instead collect more general information such as how users arrive at and use our website.

4. The data we collect

The anonymous data collected is analysed only at an aggregate level in order to track overall visitor activity on our website and make enhancement to it. The information is not reviewed at an individual level, and we do not use cookies to track visitors after leaving our website.

5. Third-party cookies

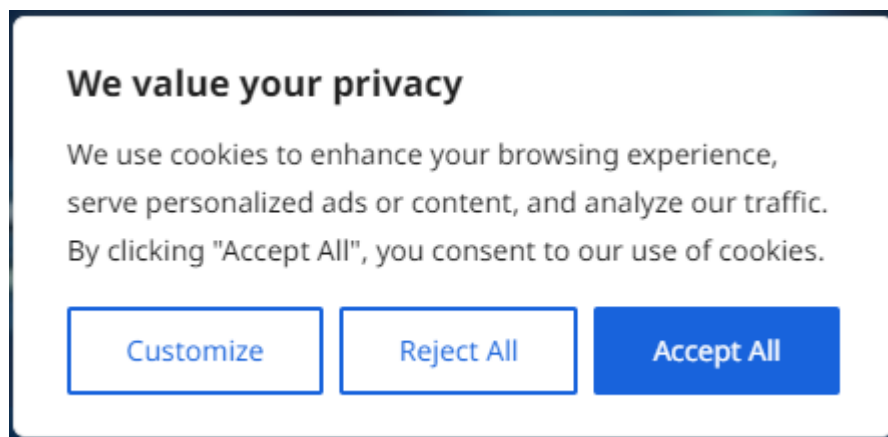

Logic may allow third parties to set cookies on a user's device and this third party may read and write their own cookies onto users' devices, such as Google Analytics.

Google Analytics tracking (and most web tracking software) uses cookies in order to provide meaningful reports about site visitors. Google Analytics cookies do not collect personal data about website visitors.

6. Consent

Users can provide their consent to the use of cookies when they visit the Logic website.

Upon visiting the website for the first time, a pop-up will appear which gives the user the option to "accept", "reject" or "customize" the use of non-essential cookies. A screenshot of what you should see is shown below.

If a user chooses the “reject” option, all non-essential cookies will not load for that user.

The “customize” feature in the bottom left hand corner of the screen gives the user the option to change their decision after allowing or disallowing cookies. See screenshot below.

7. Other ways to disable cookies

We are committed to user privacy and data protection. As such, users can manage their cookie preferences through their browser settings, in addition to the manage cookies feature explained above.

Most browsers are initially set up to accept cookies. You can block cookies by activating the setting on your browser that allows you to refuse the setting of all or some cookies. However, if you use your browser settings to block all cookies (including essential cookies) you may not be able to access all, or parts of our site.

More detail on how businesses use cookies is available at www.allaboutcookies.org and <https://www.youronlinechoices.com/uk/>. They provide details on how to delete cookies from your computer. For information on how to do this on your mobile phone browser, please see your handset manual.
